1. Zero Net Emissions – PETER WALSH

Women's Conference

That this Conference calls for The Nationals to welcome moves by agricultural industries to achieve zero net emissions and put in place policies to support farmers to achieve this goal.

CARRIED

At a state level, Peter Walsh and Steph Ryan have advocated for governments to embrace and support the net zero ambitions of peak industry bodies, such as in agriculture. Along with the existing 2050 Net Zero target in Victoria that the Liberals and Nationals will support once elected to government, further policies to specifically support farmers and regional communities will be part of a comprehensive 2022 State Election platform. Demonstrating this commitment to responsible emissions reduction action, Peter Walsh launched a report by EY and Farmers for Climate Action (FCA) in September 2021. FCA also wrote a letter thanking Peter for his leadership on the matter and calling for further Federal action. The Federal Government has since set a 2050 Net Zero target with The Nationals' firmly at the decision-making table. Darren Chester has been a strong voice for more climate action and a Federal Net Zero target, while Bridget McKenzie has been at the cabinet table ensuring regional Australia is not duded in any transition.

ENERGY, ENVIRONMENT AND CLIMATE CHANGE

6. Public land management – MELINA BATH

Lockington and District Branch

That this conference calls The Nationals to advocate for increased funding for Parks Victoria to be allocated towards a full program relating to parks, road maintenance and cultural burning.

AMENDED – CARRIED

The Nationals actively advocated for a better approach to public land use in parliament and through the media. A passionate bush user, Melina Bath is the Shadow Assistant Minister for Public Land Use.

Melina Bath highlighted the government's poor policy and mismanagement of threats to public land in Victoria through the Legislative Council's Inquiry into Ecosystem Decline in Victoria, authoring a Minority Report on behalf of The Nationals and Liberals. The Minority Report gave a voice to the submissions and testimony ignored in the Committee Report. It highlighted how much of the ecosystem decline in Victoria is a direct result of poor government policy, inadequate execution of programs and mismanagement of the major threats such as fire, invasive species and predators on public land.

The report presented evidence to the Inquiry indicating that:

- Bushfire, invasive species and introduced predators (and not sustainable timber harvesting) are the main threats to our forest ecosystems.
- The 'Safer Together' bushfire policy has failed and contributed to the 2019-20 bushfires.
- The 'Victorian Forestry Plan' is flawed, replacement plantations are unlikely to be fully implemented, and the plan will lead to lower economic output and job losses in regional areas.
- VicForests has professionally managed the 415,000 hectares of public forest under its charter and meets a raft of audits of its environmental performance.
- DELWP and Parks Victoria have not managed the 7.8 million hectares of public native forest well and these agencies need organisational improvement, not more legislative/regulatory band-aids.
- Improved management of ecosystems on private land requires strategies that make remnant native vegetation etc. more valuable rather than more costly, through mobilising volunteer effort, targeted grants and less rather than more regulatory red (green) tape.
- Victorian public and private land management is currently covered by a plethora of legislation and regulation which has not worked and impedes rather than supports continuous improvement.

7. Animal manure – PETER WALSH Moyhu Branch, Victorian Young Nationals

That this conference condemns the Andrews Government's current policy to treat livestock manure as industrial waste and supports its continuation as farm byproduct.

CARRIED

In February 2021, the State Liberals and Nationals condemned the Labor and EPA proposal to treat livestock manure as industrial waste, calling it a 'regulation for regulation's sake'. This view remains the view of the Opposition and informs our platform for the 2022 State Election.

8. High country cattle grazing – MELINA BATH

Benambra AEDC, Ballarat FEDC/ Wendouree-Bunninyong AEDC

That this conference recognises that cattle grazing in the Victorian high country has occurred for more than 150 years and calls on state governments that have banned cattle grazing in national parks to reverse these decisions.

AMENDED – CARRIED

Our Mountain cattlemen are recognised by The Nationals as a part of our living culture, and they play an important part of our history and settlement.

The Nationals continue to be strong supporters of the Mountain Cattleman's Association of Victoria and their cultural connection to the high country. Nationals' MP support the Cattleman's Cup and actively contribute to 'Voices of the Mountain' publication.

9. Dingoes – MELINA BATH & EMMA KEALY

Lowan AEDC

That this conference deplores the ludicrous proposal to reintroduce dingoes into the Grampians National Park and surroundings, as held in the Greater Gariwerd Draft Management Plan.

CARRIED

The Nationals rejected the proposal to reintroduce dingoes in the Grampians National Park and surroundings on the basis that releasing Dingoes as Apex predators has statewide implications.

During the Inquiry into Legislative Council's Inquiry into Ecosystem Decline in Victoria, Melina Bath reported that releasing dingoes as apex predators would have devastating impact on domestic and native animals. Farmers who already suffer great stock losses from wild dogs have also suffered from recent bushfires and floods.

The Minority Report Recommendation No 7 states The Nationals and Liberals oppose the reintroduction of dingoes as an apex predator.

Farmers say no to dingo

New proposal shocks locals

BY BRUCE EISHOLD

FURIOUS farmers up in arms over a plan to reintroduce dingoes as an apex predator into the Victorian bush have likened it to "putting a fox in a chook coop", labelling it as "pure stupidity".

The recommendation in the inquiry into ecosystem decline in Victoria proposes the trial reintroduction of dingoes into "suitable Victorian ecosystems" would assess ecological benefits and be designed with input from ecologists and dingo experts.

The report also urges the government to consider phasing out the use of 1000 baits to control invasive species, and instead promote wider use of "more effective and humane methods" for controlling pests such as wild dogs and foxes.

It comes a year after a joint proposal by Parks Victoria and the three Traditional Owner groups urged the government to reintroduce dingoes into the Grampians National Park to restore native ecological systems and control pest species.

The plan has since been scrapped, largely due to community angst and the likes of Merino stud sheep breeders John and Rhonda Crawford, Victoria Valley, who gathered more than 4300 signatures from landowners and people who opposed the plan.

Mr Crawford, principal of Rock-Bank Merino and Poll Merino stud, said he was "shocked and in disbelief" when he found out about the latest proposal to introduce dingoes across Victoria.

"This plan is not well thought out or backed up by practical science and it doesn't take into account the history of stock, in particular cattle and sheep, and the role wild dogs have played," he said.

"There has been uproar in the community over this... it's like a war in the bush because people think it's a bloody stupid idea."

The Environment and Planning Committee which has proposed the trial states the plan should also be accompanied by the cessation of lethal control for pest species in the trial area during the test, along with the introduction of a compensation scheme for farmers whose livestock is killed or injured by dingoes.

The committee is made up of 10 MPs - three Labor members, including chair Sonja Terpstra and single members from the Sustainable Australia Party, Liberal Party, National Party, Derryn Hinch's Justice Party, Animal Justice Party, Australian Greens and an independent Catherine Cumming.

The report said the evidence to reintroduce dingoes to the bush was "compelling".

"As Australia's apex predator, dingoes play an important role in regulating large herbivore populations (for example, kangaroos which may be overabundant in some areas) and can help suppress invasive pest species such as feral goats, foxes and cats," the report read.

"The presence of dingoes in an ecosystem can be beneficial to small marsupials, reptiles, birds and plants.

"Dingoes are also culturally significant to Traditional Owners, some of whom are actively advocating for their return."

One of the two Upper House committee MPs who opposed the report, Nationals Member for Eastern Victoria Melina Bath said the dingo proposal highlighted the "limited understanding that the city-based Labor and Labor-like independents have for regional Victoria".

"The crazy thing about this is that dingoes do not recognise boundary fences or trial plots... meaning that they migrate to a food source and certainly they are going to migrate onto adjoining farmland and injure sheep, calves, lambs, as well as any other native animals," she said.

Ms Bath said there was value in maintaining dingo populations from a historical and species sense, but said the government should be focusing its attention elsewhere.

"The overwhelming evidence in the report... was that the major threat to our native flora and fauna in Victoria is introduced species - pigs, foxes, wild cats and also mixed species wild dogs," she said.

"So if the government wants to save our native fauna, it should be focusing on methods that remove and control these introduced pest species."

However, Mr Crawford said the proposal did not "stack up financially".

"It hasn't passed the pub test," he said.

"Once you protect dingoes with limited control measures and you place them around Victoria, because there's so much food around with roos and other animals, they will do well for a decade.

"But when roo numbers decline in say a decade, these dingoes could move onto stock."

The Crawfords have since started a petition to oppose the report's recommendations, which has received more than 100 signatures since Saturday.

11. Renewable Energy Facilities – PETER WALSH & DANNY O'BRIEN

Gippsland South AEDC

That this conference recognises that energy and greenhouse gas benefits of renewable energy facilities are largely captured by urban populations but many of the costs are borne by rural populations, and calls on The Nationals to develop policies to ensure that the development of energy facilities in rural areas, particularly wind and solar farms, deliver local benefits to local communities and that such facilities are appropriately sited, as best as possible, away from houses, including farm houses.

CARRIED

The State Liberals and Nationals are developing a strong energy policy package for the 2022 State Election that will ensure regional communities are empowered to maximise the benefits of any emissions-related projects. This is supported by the Federal Nationals' commitment to protect regional communities during Australian's Net Zero transition. For example, The Nationals have been pushing for the best outcome for AusNet's Western Transmission Line with an alternative route announced by the Coalition in 2021. We have also welcomed AusNet's decision to compensate landholders who will be affected by their project.

12. Fire Rescue Victoria procurement policies – MELINA BATH

Morwell AEDC

That this conference condemns the Andrews Government for ignoring its own policies in relation to local procurement, specifically in relation to the cleaning of firefighters' uniforms, and calls on the Government to implement a transparent audit process of these policies and make these results publicly known.

CARRIED

The Victorian Nationals continued to push back on the Andrews Government's decision to remove laundry service agreements to launder firefighters' uniforms in state parliament and through the media. This FRV uniform dry cleaning issue extended to include Ambulance Victoria's uniforms after the Andrews Government subsequently cancel local service arrangements in August 2022.

In 2021, Melina Bath worked with local dry cleaners and conducted an investigation on uniform procurement, uncovering the Andrews Government formed a working group to create new dry-cleaning standards and advertised a centralised contract through the VicGov Tenders portal – which the Andrews Government labelled as open and fair. Labor's decision created social and economic stress and this was demonstrated to the media.

In state parliament Melina Bath described the Andrews Labor Government sanctioned directive to cancel regional dry cleaners' contracts as shameful, stating "Labor's disgraceful decision eats away at the heart of regional small businesses' and called on Minister Neville to “reverse this appalling decision and give the local drycleaners a chance to tender for the contracts at a local level,”

Melina Bath highlighted that state government procurement policies are to adhere to the ‘The Local Jobs First Policy’, which is designed to support Victorian businesses and workers - “Labor has an obligation to ensure small and medium size enterprises are given a full and fair opportunity to compete for government contracts – but this tender was designed to be out of the reach of Gippsland’s small businesses.”

During the Inquiry into the Closure of Hazelwood and Yallourn Power Stations Report Melina Bath highlighted how the state government failed to provide local small business owners with full and fair opportunity to compete for the government contract in breach of its Local Jobs First Policy.

The State Government’s decision to cancel long term local service agreements with local small businesses by stealth was detrimental for the regional economy and resulted in significant financial and emotional stress for local industry.

HEALTH

13. Regional Hospitals – EMMA KEALY & DANNY O’BRIEN

Lowan AEDC

That this conference supports regional cities, such as Horsham, to maintain fully autonomous hospital boards to ensure better local health care and clinical services.

CARRIED

National MPs launched a “Hands off our Hospitals” campaign in April 2021 in opposition to the State Government’s plan to amalgamate local hospitals.

This campaign included local media and petitions. Emma Kealy collected more than 4000 signatures against the amalgamation of local health services.

Emma Kealy also spoke in Parliament about the concerns held by the community for the reduction in health care services as a result of the amalgamation.

14. Farm injuries – PETER WALSH & MELINA BATH

Narracan AEDC

That this conference calls on the Victorian Government to establish a parliamentary committee to investigate the underreporting of on farm accidents and ambulance callouts.

CARRIED

The State Liberals and Nationals have used Question Time in Parliament (and other avenues) to highlight the State Labor Government's community-wide 000 and ambulance crisis. We have also been fighting for greater protections and better reporting for farmers, such as through Peter Walsh's and Melina Bath's amendments to the government's flawed Farm Trespass laws. Further work is ongoing and this specific motion will inform our 2022 State Election platform.

HOUSING

15. Public housing – DANNY O'BRIEN & STEPH RYAN

Morwell AEDC, Gippsland South AEDC, Euroa AEDC, Women's Conference

That this conference notes a lack of public housing across regional Victoria and calls on the Andrews Government to consult with local councils to provide additional properties to alleviate substantial priority waitlists for applicants.

AMENDED – CARRIED

Nationals MPs have strongly campaigned for improvements to public housing availability and kept pressure on the Andrews Labor Government to deliver their promise of more than 12,000 new homes through metro and regional Victoria with 25% of funding to be allocated in regional Victoria.

Nationals MPs have participated in stakeholder meetings with local service providers and local governments to discuss demand and shortfalls, particularly around crisis accommodation.

Danny O'Brien MP has written to the Minister for Housing as well as the Minister for Prevention of Family Violence and Minister for Planning to discuss the factors that are driving up demand for social housing and ask what action is being taken to alleviate this. National MPs have raised concerns in Parliament at lack of housing and the factors that are increasing the demand on social housing.

The Nationals have committed to support local councils with planning flying squads and free up government red tape to deliver 50,000 lots across regional Victoria in an effort to relieve the pressure on the property market that is driving up prices and forcing people into rentals and social housing.

The Nationals opposed the Windfall Gain Tax with Steph Ryan speaking against the tax in Parliament on the basis that it will contribute to future demand on public housing as people are priced out of the market.

MENTAL HEALTH

21. Psychologist Wait Times – EMMA KEALY

Victorian Young Nationals, Women's Conference

That this conference calls on the Andrews Government to establish a database of psychologists who work in regional and rural Victoria so that people struggling with mental illness can easily identify a psychologist, their location, availability and wait time.

CARRIED

The Nationals and Liberals have committed to rebuilding Victoria's mental health workforce if they win government and launching Australia's largest-ever mental health support worker recruitment drive, offering thousands of scholarships and support packages to get more people into Victoria's mental health system as soon as possible. This package includes financial support for people to gain an undergraduate mental health qualification; financial support for tertiary-qualified Victorians to enter our mental health workforce through a post-graduate qualification; and more training places for psychiatrists and psychologists so they can work sooner.

22. Mental Health Resources – EMMA KEALY

Women's Conference

That this conference calls for more collaboration between hospitals, mental health service and the legal system to support those needing rehabilitation and increased funding and training for alcohol and drug resources, staffing and bed availability.

CARRIED

As the Shadow Minister for Mental Health, Emma Kealy has consistently campaigned for improved mental health services and access to services, including those relating to alcohol and other drugs education and treatment programs. Emma regularly liaises with industry bodies and stakeholders, including the Victorian Alcohol and Drug Association, to gain feedback about the needs of the sector and advocate for necessary changes. Emma will be presenting the Nationals and Liberals' alcohol and other drugs policies to the sector at an event in Melbourne in August. Among these policies are more AOD residential withdrawal and rehab beds, and a policy to create Australia's first gold-standard drug treatment model.

In her contribution on the Appropriation (2022-2023) Bill 2022 in Parli this week, Emma Kealy mentioned the following:

The alcohol and other drug sector has been cut by $40 million, including a $25 million fund which was utilised to train up quickly 100 additional equivalent full-time workers to provide AOD support. We know a lot of people turned to the bottle and turned to drug use over the pandemic because they simply could not cope with restrictions and lockdowns. They were self-medicating. These people desperately need additional AOD support. The government put money into this program, and then with weeks to go until the end of this financial year they were told, 'That's it. There's no more'. That is 100 EFT of AOD workers that have been cut, and it is simply not good enough.

PLANNING

23. Right to Farm – PETER WALSH

Benambra AEDC

That this conference calls on governments to ensure the protection of farm-land use for agriculture and not for commercial entertainment.

AMENDED – CARRIED

24. Lead Battery Smelter – MELINA BATH & DANNY O'BRIEN

Morwell AEDC

That this conference notes the significant concerns of the Latrobe Valley community on the health impacts of a State Government endorsed Chinese- owned secondary lead smelter and calls on the Andrews Government to implement an independent and transparent Environmental Effects Statement on the project and to implement policy to ensure this does not happen to other Victorian communities.

CARRIED

Melina Bath continued her strong advocacy on the Latrobe Valley's air quality and the community's opposition to the Used Lead Acid Battery plant, highlighting how Labor handed CCP Belt and Road partner, Chunxing Corporation a licence to emit up to 54 kilograms of lead annually.

Melina Bath actively supported Hazelwood North residents fighting for greater transparency in state parliament and sponsored a parliamentary petition attracting 3,000 signatures. Through Melina Bath's advocacy, the Parliamentary Inquiry into the Health Impacts of Air Pollution recommended the Andrews Government conduct an independent Environmental Effects Statement (EES) into Chunxing Corporations Used Lead Acid Battery (ULAB) secondary smelter proposed for Latrobe Valley.

The Nationals demanded the Andrews Government accept the Inquiry recommendation and immediately commit to an independent EES on Chunxing Corporations' Used Lead Acid Battery facility. Despite the Inquiry recommendation, the Andrews Government refused to conduct an EES.

The state government released the project timeline in March 2022 against the communities wishes. Melina Bath continues to meet with concerned community members and demand full transparency on air quality in Latrobe Valley at any given moment through an expansion of the Latrobe Valley Information Network which monitors air quality so it includes lead.

PREVENTION OF FAMILY VIOLENCE

25. Community Based Assistance – EMMA KEALY

Women's Conference

That this conference urgently requests the Andrews Government to fund local community-based assistance to provide family support, thereby helping to prevent family conflict leading to domestic violence.

AMENDED – CARRIED

The Nationals and Liberals have for many years called for and supported the establishment of community-based services to provide support to people affected by domestic violence, including lobbying for safety hubs such as the Orange Door to be delivered across the state, and for greater provisions of public housing allocations for victim-survivors of family violence. The Nationals and Liberals have continued to hold the Andrews Government to account in implementing the recommendations from the Victorian Royal Commission into Family Violence six years ago. As of January this year, some of the recommendations were more than two years overdue.

In September 2021, they highlighted the Victorian Auditor-General's Office (VAGO) report that shows the project is currently $367.9M over budget and five years overdue. The Commonwealth has put up more than $200M in extra funds and, when elected to government in Victoria, The Nationals will ensure that the project is assessed and moved forward. The Nationals will also ensure a project similar to the 'Country Roads & Bridges' fund is reinstated by a Liberals and Nationals State Government with Steph Ryan as the Minister for Public Transport and Roads.

This Conference strongly rejects the proposed new camping regulations relating to the Victoria Crown Land River Reserves that are due to commence in September 2021.

CARRIED

The Nationals continued to push back and fight the changes to licenced river frontages in state parliament and through the media by highlighting issues such as waste management, water quality, bushfire risk, vulnerable species, biosecurity, public liability and the protection of stock.

The issued attracted a large amount of interest from the media. Melina Bath hosted news crews at Glenfalloch station in Licola on the Macalister River which is part of End Hill P/L with business owner Will Paul and General Manager Dane Martin to highlight the issues.

Highlighting the flaws in the public submission process, landholders were encouraged to reject the Andrews Government's plan to allow camping on licensed river frontages. A protest was held on the steps of parliament house with land holders from all Victoria attending. Leader of the Nationals and Shadow Minister for Agriculture, Peter Walsh and Melina Bath, Member for Eastern Victoria Region and Shadow Assistant Minister for Public Land Use addressed the rally.

Labor has scaled back its plans announcing only 27 pilot camping sites along licenced river frontages that are under assessment by DELWP.

The Nationals continue to seek the involvement of farmers, Traditional Owners and Landcare groups in the planning process and address farmers concerns over the lack of communication from DELWP on site assessments.
